CURRICULAR DISTINCTIVES

Our classical vision ensures that each discipline interacts with others, giving students the skills to understand and dialogue with the world. In our Humanities classes, which are an integrated study of English and History, students refine both their writing and rhetorical skills as they engage classical texts and understand the time periods that gave rise to their great ideas. Our Science teachers instill a full-orbed Science curricula that incorporates philosophy, theology, and history. Teaching Mathematics is more than memorizing formulas. Students learn through discussion, proof, and play that God has made the world full of symmetry and complexity. Fine Arts classes provide students the opportunity to explore beauty from a visual or performing perspective, while at the same time, training our students to develop craftsmanship that enables them to express their unique artistic voice. In Foreign Language classes, our students learn to communicate in the target language and interact with a culture's history, literature, and art. Finally, as students consider the Bible throughout high school, they grapple with theological ideas and learn the art of rhetoric as they present more than thirty speeches to their classmates. The final speech students present and defend is a senior thesis, delivered to a panel of judges and a live audience. These studies train our students' sensibilities and give them expertise to thrive beyond the walls of Covenant.
